

Included in Our Behaviour Sessions

Our dog behaviourist appointments include a range of services aimed at assessing, diagnosing, and addressing behavioural issues in your dog. The specific details may vary depending on the behaviourist and the needs of your dog, but here are some common components:

Initial Assessments

Our behaviourist will typically begin by conducting an initial behavioural assessment of your dog's behaviour and history. This may involve gathering information from you about your dog's background, previous training, and specific behavioural concerns.

Evaluation

Based on the assessment and observation, our behaviourist will evaluate your dog's behaviour to identify any underlying issues, triggers, or patterns.

Recommendations

If necessary, our behaviourist may recommend additional resources or services, such as veterinary care, physiotherapy, or specialised training classes, to address your dog's behavioural issues.

Educate & Guide

Our behaviourist will educate you about dog behaviour, communication, and training techniques to help you understand your dog better and effectively implement the behaviour modification plan.

Follow-Up Support

Our behaviourists offer follow-up support to monitor progress, email follow-ups with the plan, make adjustments to the behaviour modification plan as needed, video aids and infographics and provide ongoing guidance and assistance to you.

Observation

Our behaviourist will observe your dog's behaviour in various contexts, such as at home, on walks, or interacting with other animals or people. Providing us with videos can be very helpful as dogs can alter their behaviour around new people.

Behavioural Modification Plan

Our behaviourist will develop a customised behaviour modification plan tailored to your dog's specific needs and the concerns identified during the assessment. This plan may include techniques such as desensitisation, counterconditioning, positive reinforcement training, appropriate redirection, and management strategies.

Training Element

Our behaviourist appointments include one-on-one behavioural training sessions with you and your dog to implement the behaviour modification plan. These sessions may take place in your home or in other environments where the problematic behaviours occur.

Overall, our dog behaviourist appointments are designed to provide personalised support and guidance to help you address your dog's behavioural problems and improve your relationship with your dog.
